

We as Americans use and consume products everyday that we pay for with our hard earned money. We as Americans also have the right to spend our money on whatever we deem necessary. We should not be hassled by corporations to persuade us to spend that money on them. If we like their product, we will get it. If not, we won't. We shouldn't be grilled incessantly and asked for personal information over the phone especially in this day and age of identity theft. The more they hassle us; the more likely we won't want what they are trying to sell anyway. So really it doesn't pay for them to do it. Help keep our Family Time... OURS. Don't weaken the Telephone Consumer Protection Act.
